Uhlmann Pac-Systeme and Faller Packaging cooperate on sustainable packaging solutions

Laupheim, May 28, 2024. Packaging specialists Uhlmann Pac-Systeme and Faller Packaging are combining their sustainability expertise to provide their customers with holistic support in the transformation to sustainable packaging solutions. Pharmaceutical companies are facing the challenge of making their packaging solutions significantly more climate-friendly. Recyclability and energy-efficient processes play a key role in this. Faller and Uhlmann Pac-Systeme are working together to make the healthcare sector more sustainable and efficient.

Faller Packaging and Uhlmann Pac-Systeme's holistic approach to sustainable packaging solutions covers the entire packaging process, including early consultation. The consulting team, which has extensive expertise from the pharmaceutical industry, provides support along the entire value chain if required: from analysis and the test phase through to implementation in production. For the customer, this means that they have a single point of contact who takes responsibility for the entire process - and therefore a complete packaging solution from a single source. Customers benefit from accelerated development and planning processes as well as the coordinated development of optimized packaging, design and machine solutions that guarantee reliable and safe production systems.
