Pexcite receives an iF Design Award

Laupheim, June 01, 2023. For the second time, the Pexcite team from Uhlmann Pac-Systeme has reason to celebrate a design award: The Pexcite software, developed by the specialist in pharmaceutical packaging, was honored with the prestigious iF Design Award in the User Interface (UI) category in 2023 by the expert jury. Pexcite excelled particularly in functionality and design. The award ceremony took place on May 15, 2023, in Berlin.

Utilizing and managing all data of the value chain with Pexcite

Pexcite solutions connect individual machines or entire production lines across all interfaces, store process-relevant data and parameters, thereby creating transparency. This enables centralized process control. The solution is modular: With the basic version of Pexcite, users meet the essential requirements for digital data management in the pharmaceutical regulatory environment. Pexcite can be expanded with additional pharma-specific software modules from Uhlmann Pac-Systeme, such as Track & Trace. By implementing this software module, companies are able to establish the necessary prerequisites for complying with globally applicable product safety regulations and other regulatory obligations.

Pexcite is web-based and can be accessed from anywhere via mobile devices and desktop computers. Pexcite's user interface is particularly user-friendly: it is designed as a dashboard and can be individually configured by users. Numerous widgets and shortcuts are available for this purpose.

The iF Design Award is one of the oldest and most prestigious design awards worldwide. It was first presented in 1954 during the Hanover Fair for outstanding industrial design. Pexcite has also previously been awarded the Red Dot Award in 2022.
